HENRY PREPARES PAPERS TO REMAIN IN BASEBALL

BOSTON, Mass., July 10.-The work or fight Status of the big league ball players probably will hinge on the result of the decision of the Brighton district draft board in dealing with Catcher John Henry, of the Boston Braves.

After consultiing with lawyers employed by the Boston National club, who feel that organized baseball is at stake, Henry has prepared affidavits to show that the professional ball player is in the same class as the stage and motion picture actor, both of whom are immune from the work or fight

The affidavit is a lengthy one.

Among other things, it calls attention to the fact that railroads and hotels place the ball player in the same category as theatrical performers, and that theaters extend the same privileges of the pass gate to ball players as are given to theatrical performers.

Attention is also called to the fact the fact the same priviles is also called to the fact. ion is also called to the fact pendents or his employer.

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER

This Jack Dempsey, who is trying to swap wallops with Fred Fulto at Newark, N. J., for the benefit of the Clark Griffith bat and ball fund, is some puncher. Glancing over his record, made within six months, we note that he has stowed away ten opponents inside of five rounds, and that only one man, Billy Miske, has stayed the limit of ten rounds with him. Eight of his foes have gone to sleep inside of one round. Carl Morris lasted until the fourth, while Kayo Brennan was stopped in the fifth. It takes a real puncher to hang up a record like that. No matter what Fred Fulton may think about Dempsey, it behooves the Minnesotan to ponder over this record before entering the ring at Newark and to act accordingly.

The Pacific Coast puncher knocked The Pacific Coast puncher knocked out Dan "Porky" Flynn Saturday at Atlanta inside of a minute. Turning to the prosecution, Senator Balley said that no man can commit the crime of false pretense unless the tatement was made with fraudulen intent and knowing it to be false and unless the person to whom the state-ment was made believed it to be true and lost his property or money from that believe that belief. "That, I believe, is a fair definition."

of the question involved," said Sema-tor Balley, and facing District Attor-ncy Laskey, asked him whether it was.

District Attorney Laskey excused himself, saying that he had not heard the definition, his attention being engaged elsewhere when the Senator spoke.

"That is an excuse which is often made when there is no answer," said the Senator.

Justice Gould Agrees. Justice Gould agreed with Senator Bailey, saying "no doubt that is a fair definition of the proposition."

Godsol's spokesman attached particular emphasis in his argument that the crime of false representation could not have been committed by Godsol because the definition as out-lined by him to the court did not ap-ply to him; that he did not receive any money from the French republic, as stated in the complaint.

"The French government did not and could not part with any of its money because of any false represen-tations made to it, because no such tations made to it, because no such statements were ever made to France," he said. Godsol's attorney reviewed the various cases quoted by the government in support of its contention of Godsol's guilt and showed where they did not at all apply to the case under hearing; Attorney Wilton J. Lambert in his argument said that the District Atargument said that the District Attorney took segments of the evidence to suit his own purposes and read into them an atmosphere of guilt which in fact and reality were entirely lacking, and that he wove into the evidence suggestions of guilt which had never been proved even to justify an inference of a
